

WEBINAR: COVID-19 and Ongoing Challenges in the Ecumenical Community

September 30, 2020 - 5 PM

Metropolitan Nathanael of Chicago
Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America

Kathryn Lohre
Evangelical Lutheran Church in America

Senior Bishop Lawrence Reddick, III
Christian Methodist Episcopal Church

Additional Speaker TBD

COVID-19 is a horrific disease. It is enveloping the world, with more than twenty-five million cases and nearly one million deaths. A cure is nowhere in sight, and a search for a vaccine is continuing. The disease is challenging individuals and societies alike, in terms of social interactions, economic well-being, and community engagement. Churches are also experiencing challenges during this difficult period.

The National Council of Churches and the Orthodox Christian Studies Center of Fordham University are pleased to present the second in a series of webinars highlighting some of these ecclesial challenges. The discussion will also examine how churches are striving to meet these challenges, as well as the opportunity to do this ministry together.

The webinar will be livestreamed and open to all who have pre-registered. The event will include some time for audience questions. The event is free and open to the public.

Register Online at:
<https://bit.ly/webinarGOA>

The NCC and OCSC thank the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America for hosting this webinar.

